

President Paul Kagame on Monday met with the Kenyan President William Ruto on the sidelines of the World Governments Summit in Dubai.

The leaders discussed potential investment opportunities between their nations and addressed concerns surrounding regional peace and security.

During the Summit, Kagame shared his reflections on the Rwandan Genocide against the Tutsi, urging the world to learn from these experiences to prevent future conflicts.

Meanwhile, Ruto also delivered a speech on Kenyan Government Acceleration and Transformation.

Rwanda and Kenya have shared values on trade and investment within East Africa and the African continent.

Kagame also met with Central African Republic President Faustin-Archange Touadéra and Dr. Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, Director-General of the World Health Organization.

The World Governments Summit serves as a global platform for government leaders to exchange knowledge and explore solutions for future challenges.

This year's Summit themed "Shaping Future Governments," began on Sunday and brings together various heads of government, international organizations and leaders to discuss innovative solutions for future challenges and fostering international
