

Damascus – As part of the visit of the Moroccan technical delegation tasked with preparing the reopening of the Embassy of the Kingdom of Morocco in Damascus, a joint mission comprising Moroccan officials and Syrian senior officials paid a field visit to ascertain the effective closure of the office of the “polisario” separatists in the Syrian capital.

In so doing, the Syrian authorities reaffirmed their commitment to respecting the Kingdom's national sovereignty and territorial integrity, rejecting any form of support for separatist entities.

This move also testifies to Syria's firm willingness to strengthen bilateral cooperation with Morocco and promote regional stability.

HM King Mohammed VI's decision to reopen the Moroccan Embassy in Damascus marks a new era in Moroccan-Syrian ties.

The closure of the 'polisario' office in Syria is a tangible expression of this mutual commitment to the Kingdom's territorial integrity.
